Profile

Yuqin Huang is Head and Professor at Department of Sociology, East China University of Science and Technology in Shanghai, China. She was a Research Fellow at the Max Planck Institute for the Studies of Religious and Ethnic Diversity, Göttingen, Germany between 2009 and 2013. Her research mainly focuses on gender and development, and migration studies. Parts of her projects explore the gendered consequences of urbanization, industrialization and demographic transformations in contemporary China. Her other projects pay attention to foreigners (including Chinese returnees) to China, their transnational networks and (economic, political, cultural particularly religious) encounters in China.
